13TH YEAR. NO. 243.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., THURSDAY, MARCH 24, 1898.

TWO CENTS

CHANCES IN HAWAII.

PLAIN FACTS AS TO BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES THERE.

Plenty of Openings For Men With Capital—Living Costs More Than In the United States—Little Likelihood of Finding Stop Gap Places—Wages of Artisans.

At the American consulate in Honolulu Consul General Haywood was recently asked if in his opinion there would be any rush of immigration from the United States should annexation become a fact. For answer he pulled out a drawer and told his questioner to form his own conclusions from its contents. The drawer was nearly full of letters received by the latest mail and from all parts of the home country, asking as to business opportunities in the Hawaiian Islands.

For a man with capital there are many opportunities for well paying investments. Real estate in Honolulu has trebled in value in the last year or two, but is still reckoned by the acre. Choice lots in the residence section are held at from $4,000 to $6,000 per acre. The houses are mostly one story wooden cottages, costing from $800 upward. In the business section the new buildings are of stone from a local quarry, though many are of brick brought from the coast. A new hotel and several business blocks are to go up as soon as the good news comes. Every hotel and boarding house in the city is now crowded to its capacity, and cottages are difficult to find. These, unfurnished, rent for from $35 to $50 per month; furnished, from $50 to $100 per month.

Living costs more than in the United States. Chinese or Japanese cooks receive from $15 to $25 per month. Every house has spacious grounds and requires the attention of a yard boy at $12 to $15 per month. The Chinese monopolize the laundry business and do their work at the public washhouse on the outskirts of the city. Fifty cents a week is the general price for the wash of a single individual, $5 to $8 per month for a family of four.

For provisions the following prices prevail: Beef, 12½ to 15 cents; mutton, 15 cents; pork, 20 cents per pound; chickens, 75 cents each; ducks, 40 cents; turkeys, $1.25 to $2. Butter is 50 cents per pound. Eggs are 50 cents per dozen, milk 10 cents per quart. Groceries are especially expensive, as everything is brought from the coast in glass or tin. Vegetables are cheap. Five cents a day will buy enough for a small family from the Chinaman who comes to the door every morning with his two large baskets slung from the end of a pole which he carries on his shoulder. They also bring strawberries from December to July and bananas, oranges and pineapples the year round. Most large houses have electric lights, but the Standard Oil product at $1.10 per tin of five gallons is the common source of light. Gas has never been introduced. Nearly every house has its telephone, costing $4 per month.

Every family has its horse and carriage, brought from the coast and costing from $600 to $1,000 for the outfit. Every one rides. Ladies call the carriage to go around the corner and do their shopping on wheels, the clerks coming to the carriages to receive orders. This is to save hitching the horse. Every carriage has its halter, but a hitch weight is something unheard of. Bicycles are in common use, and the roads generally are in excellent condition. The road to the beach at Waikiki, where a sea bath can be indulged in any day of the year, is especially fine.

The "big money" in the past has been in sugar and in fact still is. All the natural sugar land is under cultivation, but since Ewa plantation has demonstrated the efficacy of irrigation methods there are vast tracts that can be utilized in like manner. Ewa is quoted in the market at 310. It paid last year a dividend of 30 per cent, and a larger one is looked for from this year's product. Oahu plantation, just this side of Ewa, will not produce a crop for over a year, but the stock sells at a premium. There are many smaller plantations paying from 15 to 20 per cent dividends. All sugar plantations are worked by Japanese, who come here under contract at $15 per month. What effect annexation will have on contract labor and in consequence on the size of the dividends remains to be seen. In the opinion of Judge Caldwell of the United States circuit court, who is spending the winter here, the contracts will not be worth the paper on which they are written.

Coffee raising was introduced into the islands in 1870, but was abandoned for sugar. In the district of Kona on Hawaii the abandoned coffee trees spread and grew wild, the natives making excursions to gather the ripe berries much as the American Indian and his family goes out for blueberries. This wild coffee, Kona coffee, the finest in the world, came into such general notice that attention was again called to its cultivation, and now it is rapidly coming to the front as a money maker, and every year the acreage is increasing.

Stock ranches are found on all the islands. Both cattle and sheep run at large over the large ranches controlled by corporations. The island of Niihau forms one ranch and Lanai another, and the greater part of Molokai is controlled by a third. Beef and mutton are shipped to the local market, though the demand for the latter is limited, as the natives will not touch it. All the meat for the local market has to pass through the hands of a "hui," or ring, made up of cattlemen, the owners of the steamers that ply between the islands and the butchers. There is no chance for competition, as the freight charges to outsiders are prohibitive.

In all the islands there are 60 physicians, over half of whom are in Honolulu. The government furnishes free medical attendance to the natives, and there are 20 salaried offices in its gift. The number of physicians for this city of 30,000 inhabitants does not seem large, but when it is taken into consideration that the Chinese and Japanese have their own doctors and the natives are cared for by the government it will be seen that there is in reality a population of only 6,000 on whose ills the 30 or more physicians are to live. There is an excellent hospital in this city. Physicians carry their own stocks of drugs. They are licensed to practice on recommendation of the board of medical examiners after a rigid examination in the principal branches.

The various trades are in competition with the Chinese workmen. White carpenters get $4 per day, Chinese $1.75. The work of the latter is not as good, but they are employed on the best class of work. The estimates of Chinese builders are generally about two-thirds those of the whites, and naturally they are kept busy. The white workmen are fighting this competition as far as they are able, but they all employ Chinese laborers.

Plumbers receive $4 per day. Day laborers are of all nationalities and receive from $1 to $2 per day. The men about the docks and deckhands on the steamers are mostly Hawaiians, and they are the best in the world at this work. Continuous labor they do not like, but they are hustlers for a brief period. The steamer life with hard work at the landings—there are no wharfs outside of this city—and the long intervals of rest between just suits them. The ideal life of the natives along the shore is to go fishing, sell enough of the fish to buy a quantity of poi and then live on this fish and poi while it lasts. Then they go fishing again.

Don't come here without money to live on for several months, a year perhaps, and when you get here don't forget to put to one side money enough to pay your way back. Don't expect to fall into a mercantile place for a pot boiler until what you want turns up. There are more applicants for these places now than there are places, and don't forget that the islands, taken together, are not as large as the state of New Jersey and the possibilities therefore limited. —New York Sun.

Recent statistics show that the English citizen's heaviest bill after food, rent, clothing and drink is his gas bill. England pays $100,000,000 a year to the gas companies, and it is calculated that the gas companies realize a profit of $26,000,000 a year.

IN A DAMP DUNGEON.

ARREST AND IMPRISONMENT OF HONORE LAINE IN HAVANA.

The Cipher Code, Which Was the Cause of His Trouble—Chief of Police Thought He Had Captured a Fiend—Similar Experiences in Weyler's Reign of Terror.

Mr. Honore Francois Laine, a news paper correspondent and a French citizen expelled from Cuba by General Blanco, arrived at Key West recently on board the steamer Olivette from Havana. He said with regard to his experiences there that on Friday night, March 4, at 11 o'clock, while he was leaving the Hotel de Inglaterra in Havana, he was arrested by Colonel Jose Paglieri, chief of police of Havana, taken to the Jefatura, or police headquarters, searched, deprived of all his papers and locked up in a dirty cell, where he had to sleep on the floor. He continued:

"Next morning at 5 o'clock, together with ten other young men whom I did not know and had never seen before, with one exception, and guarded by 25 soldiers of the battalion of orden publico with drawn bayonets, we were paraded through the streets of Havana to the wharf of Cavalleria, taken across the bay in a government boat and finally landed in a dirty, dingy and damp dungeon of the Cabana fortress.

"Accompanied by a Spanish captain, I was recently taken on a government boat to the steamship Olivette, and here I am in Key West. If it had not been for my friends and the French consul, I would not know why I had been detained, as the Spanish officials did not say a word to me about it. But I have been able to ascertain that I have been accused of heading a great political plot which had for its purpose the blowing up of the Vizcaya, the killing of General Blanco, General Pando and Consul General Lee. All this may seem to many like a huge joke, but the Spaniards really believe it all.

"When I was searched at the police headquarters, a cipher code was found on my person. The chief of police read on it, 'Death of Blanco, Pando and Lee,' and some other possible events of the kind that might occur, and if the press censor would not allow the transmission of the news I had my cipher code ready for writing to some friend at Key West. Then the chief took the paper to the palace and showed it to the terrified General Blanco and his staff officers, who congratulated him upon his great coup in discovering a plot in which the lives of so many important persons were in danger. He will probably be decorated for this great service.

"I had also in my pocket a notebook in which I wrote all the important news of the day to cable it at night. Among the different items were two lines that read, 'On board the Fern they are cleaning 60 rifles which have been found.' The chief of police, in his wild joy over the prospect of capturing the 60 rifles which he thought were intended for the insurgents, did not stop long enough to read the word Fern and mistook it for Teresa.

"Four officers were immediately dispatched to examine all the boats in the bay named Teresa. It is needless to add that their search was fruitless. The chief of police, in order to make it certain, took the note down on one of his own cards, which by mistake he left inside of my notebook, which he returned to me this morning, and which I intend to keep as a souvenir of the occasion and of Spanish stupidity.

"During Weyler's reign of terror I had the misfortune to go through similar experiences, with the difference that I was kept 1 year, 1 month, 6 days and 2 hours locked in the Cabanas fortress before the Spaniards found they had no case against me. I must say to Blanco's credit that in that respect he is quicker than Weyler.

"Weyler returned to Spain, leaving behind an ocean of tears and insuperable mountains of hate in every Cuban heart. Spain, pretending to have repented of her war of extermination against the Cubans, sent Blanco, mild and meek, to replace the ferocious Weyler. He came offering the olive branch of peace with promises of a change in the policy of persecution which Weyler had publicly carried out. The Cubans were invited to return from abroad and promises were made to them that they should not again be molested. But like all the promises of Spain, they were not made in good faith. Only a few months have been sufficient to prove that, as my unfortunate companions can testify.

"It is true that Cubans are no longer publicly executed, with brass bands playing lively Spanish airs, as in the days of Weyler, but prisoners of war are all executed on the quiet. The Cubans detained in cities are not paraded through the streets in the daytime handcuffed and tied in long strings, but they are now seized in their homes in the middle of the night and dragged to the Cabana fortress very early in the morning so as to not allow the news to spread and alarm the city, or else they mysteriously disappear from the Jefatura, as has been the case with several who have been detained during these last few days and whose families are vainly searching for them.

"The procedure of incommunicado is still carried on as in the palmy days of Weyler, and the prisoners are subjected to the same tortures and indignities, as Manuel Pardo can testify, who was beaten by the chief of police in person to make him 'confess.' All these things are done today, when the Spaniards are preaching that they are carrying out a politica de atraccion (a policy of attraction). If that is today when they still have in the field 30,000 armed Cubans to attract, what would it be if the Cubans were such fools as to believe their promises and lay down their arms. As long as every Spaniard considers every Cuban an enemy, and as long as every Cuban has only grievances from every Spaniard in official place, how can there be peace in Cuba?" —New York Sun.

Bouillon Taken For Coffee.

A new railroad was opened up the other day in a Vermont town, and in honor of the event the company entertained some of the prominent residents of the locality. Bouillon was the first entree. It was served in teacups, as is said to be the proper style. The first trustee took it for coffee, called for sugar and milk and used them, passing them on to the second trustee, who followed his example, and passed them to the third, who helped himself and handed them to the next, who, in turn, milked and sweetened his cup and passed them on to the editor, who took the contents of his cup to be tea, and took milk only and passed it to the clerk, thence to the president, and the rest of the officials, and then somebody said "soup," and thereafter nobody thought he cared much for bouillon anyway, and now if you ask one of them, "Do you take sugar and milk in your bouillon?" an explosion occurs. —Troy Press.

BEYOND HIS CONTROL

John Kerr Had Nothing to Do With the Action

AS TAKEN BY THE DEMOCRATS

At the Central Committee Meeting Last Night—They Passed Resolutions Refusing to Accept the Resignation He Sent to Chairman Weisend.

There was a large attendance last evening at the meeting of the Democratic central committee.

R. J. Meakin acted as chairman of the session and John W. Moore secretary. J. J. Weisend presented the letter published in the NEWS REVIEW from John Kerr in which he declined the nomination of mayor on the Democratic ticket. The committee declined unanimously to accept the resignation, and after almost every person present had made remarks upon the subject a motion was made to draft resolutions embodying the sentiment of the committee, and present the same to Mr. Kerr. The resolutions are as follows:

WHEREAS, At a delegate convention of the Democracy of the city of East Liverpool, held in city hall Saturday evening, March 19, 1898, Mr. John Kerr was unanimously nominated, as the first choice of the Democracy, as a candidate for mayor, and

WHEREAS, Certain persons interested in the success of a nether candidate have brought such undue pressure to bear upon said nominee, John Kerr, that he has addressed a letter to J. J. Weisend, chairman of the nominating convention, asking that he be allowed to decline, and

WHEREAS, We believe said John Kerr to be the strongest representative of clean municipal government now before the public, and

WHEREAS, We believe that it was an error on the part of Mr. Kerr in inditing said letter, asking to be allowed to decline said nomination, therefore be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Democratic central committee, representing the Democracy of East Liverpool, in session this Wednesday evening, March 25, 1898, that it is not in the interest of clean municipal government that said John Kerr decline to stand as the party candidate for the office of mayor of the city of East Liverpool.

Resolved, That the Democratic central committee respectfully refuse to accept the tendered declination of Mr. Kerr as our candidate.

Resolved, That the Democracy of the city of East Liverpool hereby pledges its undivided support, and asserts that it will make every honorable effort to elect said John Kerr to the office for which we have placed him in nomination, and that we most respectfully ask him to make a vigorous canvass of the voters of the city, believing that an appeal to the people alone is necessary to insure his election.

Resolved, That the officers of this committee be instructed to present to Mr. Kerr a copy of these resolutions.

The resolutions were presented to Mr. Kerr this morning by W. S. Cook, C. A. Ferguson and J. W. Moore.

Mr. Kerr, when interviewed by a representative of the NEWS REVIEW, said: "I took the action I did, believing that it was in the interest of good government of the city. When I sent in my resignation I did all in my power, and the action taken by the committee was beyond my control or advice. I will not be in the field from my own action, and did not desire the committee to act the way they have done."

LOOKING FOR HIS WIFE.

An Anxious Stranger Told a Pitiful Story.

A stranger stopped at Walker late last night, and asked if the people there had seen a houseboat go by. He said his home had broken away from its moorings up the river, and as his wife and child were on board he was very anxious about them.

He was informed that a boat with a light shining through the window had passed down.

Walked From Wellsville.

Mrs. Stone yesterday afternoon walked to the city from Wellsville in order to fill her engagement at the Christian church, where last evening she entertained a large audience. She will deliver an address again this evening.

BEYOND HIS CONTROL

John Kerr Had Nothing to Do With the Action

AS TAKEN BY THE DEMOCRATS

At the Central Committee Meeting Last Night—They Passed Resolutions Refusing to Accept the Resignation He Sent to Chairman Weisend.

There was a large attendance last evening at the meeting of the Democratic central committee.

R. J. Meakin acted as chairman of the session and John W. Moore secretary. J. J. Weisend presented the letter published in the News Review from John Kerr in which he declined the nomination of mayor on the Democratic ticket. The committee declined unanimously to accept the resignation, and after almost every person present had made remarks upon the subject a motion was made to draft resolutions embodying the sentiment of the committee, and present the same to Mr. Kerr. The resolutions are as follows:

WHEREAS, At a delegate convention of the Democracy of the city of East Liverpool, held in city hall Saturday evening, March 19, 1898, Mr. John Kerr was unanimously nominated, as the first choice of the Democracy, as a candidate for mayor, and

WHEREAS, Certain persons interested in the success of a nother candidate have brought such undue pressure to bear upon said nominee, John Kerr, that he has addressed a letter to J. J. Weisend, chairman of the nominating convention, asking that he be allowed to decline, and

WHEREAS, We believe said John Kerr to be the strongest representative of clean municipal government now before the public, and

WHEREAS, We believe that it was an error on the part of Mr. Kerr in inditing said letter, asking to be allowed to decline said nomination, therefore be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Democratic central committee, representing the Democracy of East Liverpool, in session this Wednesday evening, March 25, 1898, that it is not in the interest of clean municipal government that said John Kerr decline to stand as the party candidate for the office of mayor of the city of East Liverpool.

Resolved, That the Democratic central committee respectfully refuse to accept the tendered declination of Mr. Kerr as our candidate.

Resolved, That the Democracy of the city of East Liverpool hereby pledges its undivided support, and asserts that it will make every honorable effort to elect said John Kerr to the office for which we have placed him in nomination, and that we most respectfully ask him to make a vigorous canvass of the voters of the city, believing that an appeal to the people alone is necessary to insure his election.

Resolved, That the officers of this committee be instructed to present to Mr. Kerr a copy of these resolutions.

The resolutions were presented to Mr. Kerr this morning by W. S. Cook, C. A. Ferguson and J. W. Moore.

Mr. Kerr, when interviewed by a representative of the News Review, said: "I took the action I did, believing that it was in the interest of good government of the city. When I sent in my resignation I did all in my power, and the action taken by the committee was beyond my control or advice. I will not be in the field from my own action, and did not desire the committee to act the way they have done."

LOOKING FOR HIS WIFE.

An Anxious Stranger Told a Pitiful Story.

A stranger stopped at Walker late last night, and asked if the people there had seen a houseboat go by. He said his home had broken away from its moorings up the river, and as his wife and child were on board he was very anxious about them.

He was informed that a boat with a light shining through the window had passed down.

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

Are Sadly Needed at the Public Library.

MANY OF THEM ARE INTERESTED

The Board Decided to Correspond With Mr. Sanor In Regard to an Advertising Contract Which Has Some Bearing on the Matter—An Entertainment.

The library directors transacted some business of unusual importance at their meeting at city hall last evening.

Mr. Weisend, Mr. Stewart, Mr. Ruhe, Mr. Warner, Mr. Logan, Mr. Eardley and Mayor Gilbert were present, the latter occupying the chair. Mr. Weisend became interested in politics before the meeting was well under way and left. Miss McLain, the librarian, was also present.

Bills to the amount of $47.41 were paid, and a proposition that the Kermess, now being prepared by a number of young people, be given as a library benefit was promptly accepted on the motion of Mr. Stewart. The directors will back the project, sell all tickets and do the advertising, for which 50 per cent of the proceeds will be given the library.

The question of an old advertising contract made by S. D. Sanor when he was in the city brought out the fact that a number of juvenile books are due the library, but $92 must be provided before they can be secured. Miss McLain urged that the money be forwarded at once as children manifested great interest in the library and the books are sadly needed. It was decided to make the purchase. Mayor Gilbert recommended that other books be purchased, but the directors informed him that money was scarce, and the meeting adjourned.

FANNY RICE TOMORROW.

She is the Funniest Woman on the American Stage.

The funniest woman on the stage is Fanny Rice, who will be seen here tomorrow evening at the Grand Opera House in her most successful production of "At the French Ball." There are very few funny women on the stage. There are plenty of men who can make fun, but the women are not often gifted that way. That is the reason that this bright, clever, fascinating little actress has taken such a hold on public favor. She is genuinely, undisputably funny. Without the fictitious help of extravagant make-up, dressed in her best gowns—and she wears some wonderful creations of the dressmaker's art—or in her simple little calico gowns as Nancy, she is funny, immensely funny.

A teaspoonful of Frostine does it.

DOINGS IN EUROPE.

Epitomized Notes on Events Reflecting Life Across the Atlantic.

Football is attended by dangers in continental Europe from which the players in America are as yet exempt. A duel has recently taken place at Paris between two football men, the captains of rival teams, who had quarreled on the field during the progress of a game. Unlike most French duels, which are innocuous, both combatants received severe sword wounds in the arms and shoulders.

The rapid firing guns which are being distributed to the German artillery are richly chiseled and about their center bear, engraved on a steel plate, the inscription, "Pro Gloria et Patria," surmounted by the heraldic eagle. Near the breech, surrounded by a wreath, are seen the insignia of the emperor, "W. R. II," and the three magic words, "Ultimo Ratio Regis." The whole of this particular ornamentation emanates from the emperor himself.

Animals appear to be taking the place of birds' plumes on the hats of the women of Paris. Small chinchillas—charming little creatures nearly akin to the rat—are now a favorite form of adornment, the soft gray of the fur harmonizing beautifully with blue velvet, for instance. It remains to be seen where this fad will stop. There is no reason why it should not extend to guinea pigs, kittens and puppies. Indeed, even young lambs and goats may eventually be utilized for the purpose.

A bloodless encounter, the result of a few angry words, has taken place in Rome between two Sicilian deputies, Prince Pietro de Scalea and Signor Saporo. Rapiers were the weapons used, and at the fifth assault Prince Pietro, while making a backward movement, knocked himself so violently against a tree that the doctor declared that it was impossible for him to continue. The doctor of the other principal having come to the same conclusion, the two duelists were reconciled on the spot.

M. Hanotaux has narrowly escaped prosecution for cruelty to animals. A monkey, which had been presented to him by the minister of the colonies and which was too savage for the house, was chained up in the courtyard, where an inspector of the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals discovered that the chain to which it was attached had chafed its body. A notice was served upon the minister for foreign affairs, who immediately took steps to place the monkey in a more comfortable position.

A law has recently been passed in France forbidding any one to give solid food of any kind to infants under a year without the written authority of a qualified medical man. If there were a similar provision for the protection of infants elsewhere, those frequent verdicts of "Died from improper food" would not be returned. In France, too, the long rubber tubes to feeding bottles are forbidden under heavy penalties. Everywhere people are warned not to use them, the reason being that it is impossible to keep them properly sterilized.

Among the many dangers with which the French republic is now confronted is the intense discontent of the army of officials of high and low degree, who complain bitterly of insufficient pay, their remuneration, it must be confessed, being very small and altogether insufficient to maintain them in the degree of respectability required by their places. This is perhaps due to their excessive number, which borders close upon 1,000,000. A host of salaried servants of this kind constitute a terrible drain upon the resources of a country even so rich as France, and when they are discontented, as they are now, they cannot but form a grave menace to the state.

London will soon become the ideal home of the poor man. Lord Rowton, the well known private secretary of the late Lord Beaconsfield, is extending in every direction in the vast British metropolis his eminently successful scheme of cheap hotels, built and run on the same lines as the M. H. H. in New York, and now Sir Thomas Lipton has made arrangements to follow suit by establishing all over London restaurants of an analogous character, where substantial and good meals can be obtained for cost price. It is not proposed to run these restaurants at a loss, but neither is it intended to run them at a profit.

Letters to the editor are an institution in Sicily, as well as in more civilized countries, and one which has recently appeared in the leading papers of Palermo is worthy of note. It bears the signature of Candino, the most feared and murderous of Sicilian brigands, and is destined to inform the readers that he has expelled from his band a notorious robber named Galbo, as having been guilty of "discourteous and unmannerly conduct in his dealings with the public." The letter ends with the words "kindest greetings of friendship" for the editors, which must not be construed as a reflection on the proverbial honesty of the Sicilian press.

The Russian government has been compelled in consequence of the irruption of Chinese hordes across the frontier into Siberia to issue a decree prohibiting the immigration of the yellow race, based on the same lines as the Chinese exclusion act of the United States and of England's Australian colonies. This has given great offense to Peking. But the czar had no alternative, as not only did the invasion of the Chinese revolutionize the conditions of labor in Russian Asia and interfere with his projects of colonization, but likewise entailed costly military measures for the purpose of keeping the Chinese under control and preventing sanguinary conflicts that were constantly taking place between them and the Russian settlers.—New York Tribune.

Maginn.

Blackwood set a high value on Maginn's contributions. "There is one peculiar excellence," he writes, "in this writer which strikes us Scotsmen—his easy, idiomatic English. Maginn was a brilliant but unmanageable creature. He soon drifted away from Maga and devoted himself to his rival and imitator, Fraser's. When his habits had brought him to a premature grave, Lockhart wrote his epitaph in a score of jingling rhymes:

MUSIC AS HIS ETHER.

DR. THOMAS B. KEYES USES A PHONOGRAPH IN SURGERY.

Chicago Physicians See Startling Experiments Performed on a Patient Who Is Under the Influence—Almost Incredible Tests Made.

Surgery is likely to lose half its terrors. Growsome operations in the future will be pleasant incidents. The amputation of a limb will be done to the accompaniment of dulcet tones from a phonograph. The talkative machine will displace ether and chloroform, and the man of high strung temperament can visit his dentist without the fear of laughing gas or noxious drugs.

All this will come to pass if the predictions of Dr. Thomas B. Keyes of Chicago count for anything. Dr. Keyes has discovered that the phonograph is a greater hypnotist than man, that the thing animate is mightier than mind itself. He has already put his theories into practice and the results he calculated to produce amazement in the scientific world.

A few nights ago the doctor at his laboratory performed some experiments before members of the medical fraternity. He demonstrated that the phonograph possesses powers never dreamed of. He put the strongest men to sleep by the influence alone of the magic cylinder. It took only a few moments to send his subjects to the Land of Nod, and there was no returning until the doctor gave the word. He slipped a cylinder on the machine which had previously caught the strains of one of Sousa's most famous marches. The body of the subject in the chair moved in rhythmic cadence to the music.

Dr. Keyes changed cylinders. It was one of his own compositions this time, and the music was from the well known vocabulary of the surgeon to his patient. It was something like this:

"You feel no pain. Not a muscle in your body is in pain. You have no feeling."

The patient slept on, and the doctor produced a large silver needle from his surgical case. He heated it on the gas jet and began pricking the patient's hand until the blood stood out. Not a movement of the patient was noticeable. The doctor grasped the right hand of the man in the chair and, compressing the muscles between the thumb and the forefinger, pushed the needle slowly through the intervening flesh. Still not a twitch or the slightest motion of pain. He carried his experiments further. Slowly pulling the tongue from the mouth until it protruded an inch, he inserted the needle, pulling it clean through. Not a sound escaped the man in the chair. The men who handle the scalpel and the knife drew closer. The pulse was felt, and it was declared normal. There was not even a flush noticeable.

Dr. Keyes said his experiment in the line of surgery was over and proceeded to wake the sleeping patient. He slipped on another cylinder. It told the man to wake up. In slow, monotonous tones it repeated the command, and the subject was soon in the condition that he had been at first. He looked at his hands and discovered the blood and cast suspicious glances at the doctor. He maintained that he had not felt the least pain and did not then. He was totally ignorant of the operation on his tongue.

Dr. Keyes was more than satisfied with the experiment. He told how he had used the phonograph once or twice before in the performance of actual surgery and claimed it was far superior to either ether or chloroform. It would only be a matter of time before it would replace both in the world's hospitals.

"I am a firm believer in hypnotism," he said, "and some time ago it occurred to me that the phonograph might do the work of man and to better advantage. I have found that it does. Hypnotism is simply the reception of suggestions. The phonograph can be made to repeat a line of suggestion for any length of time, and if you keep on long enough the patient is bound to go to sleep. It produces a pleasant sensation to the patient and there is absolutely no danger. Patients subject to heart disease or kindred ailments need have no fear of the consequences. There is absolutely no excitement either before or after the ordeal. I have used it twice in surgical operations and believe it is infallible."

Dr. Keyes is professor of surgery at Harvey Medical college and was one of the first among the medical men in Chicago to teach hypnotism as a means to alleviate pain.—Chicago Times-Herald.

When a man neglects his health for a day he marks two days off the calendar of his life. When he neglects his health for two consecutive days he marks four days off his life's calendar. And so on. That's about the ratio, and it doesn't take many days to cross off an entire year. And yet men recklessly neglect their health for weeks at a time. It is the easiest thing in the world for the average man or woman to get good health and then keep it. It only needs a little stich here and there. The big, dangerous maladies that threaten life are only the culmination of the little illnesses that are neglected. If when a man feels "knocked-out," "out-of-sorts," "run-down," overworked or overwinded he will resort to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery he will soon feel bright, strong and vigorous again and able to combat all the big maladies in the doctor's books. Moreover the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a sure and speedy cure for some of the most dangerous diseases. It cures 98 per cent of all cases of consumption. It cures nervous prostration and exhaustion. These are not mere assertions. Thousands of grateful men and women have testified to the facts, and hundreds of their names, addresses and photographs are printed in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser.

"I used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for torpid liver and indigestion, and obtained permanent relief," writes J. A. Williams, Esq., of Mill Brook, Washington Co., Tenn.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser has had a larger sale than any other book of this class ever offered the public. This book of 1,008 pages with 300 illustrations, is full from cover to cover, of practical advice on health matters. GREAT GRUMBLERS.

Grumbling Will Cease if East Liverpool People Follow This Citizen's Advice.

When the kidneys are sick they grumble. You hear them clear through the back. You feel them clear through the body. They grumble when overtaxed. Know how the kidneys grumble? It's a simple thing; your back will tell you. Backache is the first grumbling warning. The kidneys give it and if you heed it not. Look out for trouble, it will surely come. Urinary trouble, kidney trouble and many miseries. Doan's Kidney Pills are made for kidneys only. They cure every form of kidney ill. The experience of East Liverpool people proves this.

Here's a case in point: Mrs. Wm. James, who lives at 283 Third street, says: "I was troubled off and on for eight years with a weakness of the back and kidneys, a dull, aching pain across my loins, up under my shoulder blades, and rheumatic pain in my right shoulder. I was very susceptible to changes in the weather, and was so bad at times that I could scarcely stand and support my own weight. The trouble affected my nervous system, causing frequent fluttering of the heart and a shortness of breath. I generally resorted to porous plasters, but the relief was only temporary. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. Pharmacy, and obtained relief almost at once. The symptoms all left, and there was nothing wrong with my kidneys after the treatment. I felt much better and stronger generally." Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Prices 50 cents per box. By mail on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for United States. Remember the name, Doan's and take no other.

He put the strongest men to sleep by the influence alone of the magic cylinder. It took only a few moments to send his subjects to the Land of Nod, and there was no returning until the doctor gave the word. He slipped a cylinder on the machine which had previously caught the strains of one of Sousa's most famous marches. The body of the subject in the chair moved in rhythmic cadence to the music.

Dr. Keyes changed cylinders. It was one of his own compositions this time, and the music was from the well known vocabulary of the surgeon to his patient. It was something like this:

"You feel no pain. Not a muscle in your body is in pain. You have no feeling."

The patient slept on, and the doctor produced a large silver needle from his surgical case. He heated it on the gas jet and began pricking the patient's hand until the blood stood out. Not a movement of the patient was noticeable. The doctor grasped the right hand of the man in the chair and, compressing the muscles between the thumb and the forefinger, pushed the needle slowly through the intervening flesh. Still not a twitch or the slightest motion of pain. He carried his experiments further. Slowly pulling the tongue from the mouth until it protruded an inch, he inserted the needle, pulling it clean through. Not a sound escaped the man in the chair. The men who handle the scalpel and the knife drew closer. The pulse was felt, and it was declared normal. There was not even a flush noticeable.

Dr. Keyes said his experiment in the line of surgery was over and proceeded to wake the sleeping patient. He slipped on another cylinder. It told the man to wake up. In slow, monotonous tones it repeated the command, and the subject was soon in the condition that he had been at first. He looked at his hands and discovered the blood and cast suspicious glances at the doctor. He maintained that he had not felt the least pain and did not then. He was totally ignorant of the operation on his tongue.

Dr. Keyes was more than satisfied with the experiment. He told how he had used the phonograph once or twice before in the performance of actual surgery and claimed it was far superior to either ether or chloroform. It would only be a matter of time before it would replace both in the world's hospitals.

"I am a firm believer in hypnotism," he said, "and some time ago it occurred to me that the phonograph might do the work of man and to better advantage. I have found that it does. Hypnotism is simply the reception of suggestions. The phonograph can be made to repeat a line of suggestion for any length of time, and if you keep on long enough the patient is bound to go to sleep. It produces a pleasant sensation to the patient and there is absolutely no danger. Patients subject to heart disease or kindred ailments need have no fear of the consequences. There is absolutely no excitement either before or after the ordeal. I have used it twice in surgical operations and believe it is infallible."

Dr. Keyes is professor of surgery at Harvey Medical college and was one of the first among the medical men in Chicago to teach hypnotism as a means to alleviate pain.—Chicago Times-Herald.

A photographer in a Black country town not ten miles from Birmingham has hit on a novel expedient for collecting his outstanding debts. He has exhibited in his window several photographs, with the following legend written above them, "The person who had this photo taken and has not paid for same will much oblige by calling." A portrait of a wedding party is included in this unique collection.—Birmingham Telegraph.

When a man neglects his health for a day he marks two days off the calendar of his life. When he neglects his health for two consecutive days he marks four days off his life's calendar. And so on. That's about the ratio, and it doesn't take many days to cross off an entire year. And yet men recklessly neglect their health for weeks at a time. It is the easiest thing in the world for the average man or woman to get good health and then keep it. It only needs a little stick here and there. The big, dangerous maladies that threaten life are only the culmination of the little illnesses that are neglected. If when a man feels "knocked out," "out-of-sorts," "run-down," overworked or overworn he will resort to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery he will soon feel bright, strong and vigorous again and able to combat all the big maladies in the doctor's books. Moreover the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a sure and speedy cure for some of the most dangerous diseases. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. It cures nervous prostration and exhaustion. These are not mere assertions. Thousands of grateful men and women have testified to the facts, and hundreds of the names, addresses and photographs are printed in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser.

"I used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for torpid liver and indigestion, and obtained permanent relief," writes J. A. Williams, Esq., of Mill Brook, Washington Co., Tenn.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser has had a larger sale than any other book of this class ever offered the public. This book of 1,008 pages with 300 illustrations, is full from cover to cover, of practical advice on health matters. This great book, in heavy manilla covers, is now offered FREE to whoever will send 21 one-cent stamps to pay for mailing only. (An elegant French cloth binding is desired, send 10 cents extra; 31 cents in all. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.)

GREAT GRUMBLERS.

Grumbling Will Cease if East Liverpool People Follow This Citizen's Advice.

When the kidneys are sick they grumble. You hear them clear through the back. You feel them clear through the body. They grumble when overtaxed. Know how the kidneys grumble? It's a simple thing; your back will tell you. Backache is the first grumbling warning.

The kidneys give it and if you heed it not, Look out for trouble, it will surely come.

Urinary trouble, kidney trouble and many miseries. Doan's Kidney Pills are made for kidneys only.

They cure every form of kidney ill. The experience of East Liverpool people proves this.

Here's a case in point: Mrs. Wm. James, who lives at 283 Third street, says: "I was troubled off and on for eight years with a weakness of the back and kidneys, a dull, aching pain across my loins, up under my shoulder blades, and rheumatic pain in my right shoulder. I was very susceptible to changes in the weather, and was so bad at times that I could scarcely stand and support my own weight. The trouble affected my nervous system, causing frequent fluttering of the heart and a shortness of breath. I generally resorted to poultices and plasters, but the relief was only temporary. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. Pharmacy, and obtained relief almost at once. The symptoms all left, and there was nothing wrong with my kidneys after the treatment. I felt much better and stronger generally."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Prices 50 cents per box. By mail on receipt of price by Foster-McLure Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for United States. Remember the name. Doan's and take no other.

One More Volunteer.

I had enough of 'fightin'
When I quit, in sixty-five,
An thinkin' o' it over
I jest wonder I'm alive!
Had four brisk years o' bullets
That read my titles clear,
But, ef it's war—don't keer what fer—
Here's one more volunteer!

You see, when Lee surrendered
An turned his papers in
He didn't sign away that day
The right ter fight ag'in!
Leastways, I so regards it,
But on one point I'm clear—
Ef this ole country's in fer fight,
Here's one more volunteer!

The ole sword's lookin' lonesome
Up thar, before my eyes,
The rifle, rustin on the rack,
Is needin' exercise!
An though the peaceablest man
You'd fin' in many a year,
Ef this here Union's in fer war
Here's one more volunteer!

The ole time rifle's ready,
An though I ain't so spry,
As when I faced the boys in blue
In them ole days gone by,
Yit I'm in the Union,
Read out my titles clear,
Hept ter the right! Ef she says fight,

SHE WAIVED A HEARING

Mrs. Nora Dobbs Will Go to Court.

LARGE NUMBER OF WITNESSES

Gathered at City Hall, but Were Sent Home—Some Suffering in the Flooded Districts—All the Good News of Wellsville.

The sensational shooting affray which resulted Monday night in the arrest of Mrs. Nora Dobbs came to a sudden end in police court this morning when she waived a hearing and was bound to common pleas court in the sum of $300. A large number of witnesses were present, and it was expected that some interesting testimony would be given.

It will be remembered that Mrs. Dobbs and her family moved here a few months ago from Steubenville. They lived in a portion of the Geisse residence, and it is alleged that she fired two shots at Sadie Geisse, the result of frequent quarrels.

THE FLOOD

Caused Some Damage and Much Inconvenience.

Many people in the flooded districts are greatly inconvenienced because of the high water, and a large number of them have moved into the upper story of their homes. They moved around in shifts yesterday and this morning.

It is generally conceded that the inundation is the result of the narrow-minded policy of council in not sewer-ing the town, since much of the water would have long ago been carried off if the low country was properly drained. As a result there has been much talk today, and a great many citizens are urging the construction of a sewer system without delay. When questioned about the matter one councilman said he could do nothing now, the end of his term was so near, but he believed something should be done.

The board of trade have also been following the matter closely, and deprecate the sensational manner in which the flood has been reported in some of the newspapers. One member said he did not believe in magnifying the unfortunate occurrence as had certainly been done. The facts would, in his opinion, do enough to injure the town without making it worse.

At the corner of Second and Broadway is a sign bearing these words "$5 fine for driving over this sidewalk." As the pavement is under five feet of water the humor of the assertion can be easily seen.

Milk dealers are having a hard time of it reaching their customers, and all sorts of expedients are resorted to in the hope of keeping their trade.

Physicians are discussing the result of the flood, and it is generally conceded that there will be a great deal of sickness. They, too, are urging the construction of a sewer system as soon as possible.

The water began falling this morning in the upper part of town, and at the rolling mill the inconvenience and damage will soon be at an end.

The railroad officials are doing all in their power to clear the line, but they do not announce when trains will run regularly. Much damage has been done down the river.

The News of Wellsville.

Alexander Reager was arrested last night by Officer Mick. He was fined $1 and costs for drunkenness.

Matthew Smith and Miss Lilian Manley were to have been married by Reverend Carson, but he could not reach here last night, and Doctor Reager performed the ceremony. During the night the water came pouring into their house and they were compelled to move.

W. V. Davies was arraigned in police court this morning charged with using abusive language. He paid $8.00.

Samuel Myers and his horse fell into the water in Third street this morning. They were not hurt.

Attorney A. G. Smith is very ill with grip.

TO WATER CONSUMERS.

The water in the lower reservoir was exhausted at 11 o'clock this morning. The other reservoir can only supply until daylight tomorrow. Every property holder must use as little water as possible. Water supply of potteries has been shut off. Citizens must be very careful.

HELPS THE PLUMBER.

The House Rat Eats Quantities of Lead Pipe and Creates Sewer Gas.

One of the most persistent and destructive assistants the plumber has is the house rat. A rat can eat out plumbing as fast as an average honest man can pay for it. To a rat a greasy lead pipe is a toothsome morsel. When a hungry rat forsakes the barn and finds his way into the cellar of a house and thence up through the walls to the space between the floors, the first thing he tackles is the grease on the outside of a lead waste pipe. If he finds other food shortly thereafter, he spares the pipe, otherwise he eats the pipe and the water escapes through to the ceiling below and ruins the plaster. The plumber is sent for and repairs the leak, but he doesn't tell what caused it.

Once upon a time a rat was "hoist by his own petard," so to speak. He got into a house and found his way to a lead pipe, on which he tried his teeth. It was pleasant chewing and put a fine edge on his teeth, so he continued. Soon he had eaten a large hole in the pipe and a stream of scalding water poured forth. Before he could escape he had been scalded to death, to say nothing of being drowned. But he had the satisfaction of knowing that he had ruined a fine ceiling and that the carpet underneath it had been soaked full of lime-water. There is no great loss without some small gain.

Just to show what they could do, some rats once ate 50 feet of lead pipe under a bathroom and over the kitchen of a big hotel in this city. The floor of the bathroom was marble and under it was a fireproof floor made of iron beams and hollow tiles. The pipes were laid in the space between the floor and the girders. Rats were attracted thereto by the odors from the kitchen. They met the lead pipes. When their appetites were satisfied, the space was filled with lead dust.

Rats like to eat drain pipes from kitchen sinks because they are lined with grease. The only way to keep them away is to pack the pipes with mineral wool. Mineral wool is a substance made of furnace slag through which a jet of air has been forced while it cooled. The mineral wool gets into the eyes of the rats and drives them away. Modern plumbers discourage rats by laying iron instead of lead pipes.

Rats, strange to say, are great breeders of sewer gas. They gather up bones and scraps of meat about the kitchen yard and carry them up into the rafters between floors and ceilings. The presence of this plunder is sooner or later discovered by the odor, and the plumber is sent for to discover whence the sewer gas comes. It is not always well to tell the housekeeper the truth.

Thus it is the humble brown house rat helps his friend the plumber earn an honest livelihood, and the plumber thanks him in his own gentle way.—Kansas City Star.

Story of a Ring and a Slipper.

The daughter of a wealthy resident of the hill section presented a young woman friend with a pair of dainty slippers, and in the toe of one of them she placed a valuable ring, set with an opal and two diamonds. The present went to the destination, but the slippers did not fit, and the recipient of the gift did not discover the ring. She sent the slippers back to the store, and they were placed on the shelves with the thousands of other similar boxes.

On Monday the floorwalker in the shoe department received a severe shock when a young woman rushed into the place and rambled off a lot of talk about missing jewels. After some difficulty he managed to get the facts of her story together, and then every one of the employees was ordered to begin a search for the slippers. In two hours they were found, and the ring was just where it had been placed.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Needs of the Present.

"Wouldn't your majesty like to take out some life insurance?" respectfully asked the agent on being admitted to the royal presence.

"I can't afford it," replied King Solomon. "It's all I can do to look after my family while I'm alive."

Waving his hand to signify that the interview was ended, he turned to the speaking tube and ordered his steward to provide 300 porterhouse steaks and 700 veal cutlets, breaded, with tomato sauce, for the family dinner.—Chicago Tribune.

responsibility and criticized by men who are not in position to understand the nature of that responsibility, he has suffered the taunts and sneers of his enemies without a murmur. When it became evident that this government would sooner or later be seriously involved with Spain in the settlement of the Maine matter and sundry other questions of importance, the president did not hasten to announce his intentions to the world, but he quietly mapped out a course and with a will which cannot be justly criticized he has faithfully and honestly followed that course. Although the report of the Maine investigation has not been made public and the people do not know whether we are to maintain our national honor by force of arms, the events of the past few days do much toward showing that President McKinley has always believed that would be the outcome of the trouble. Therefore he has been preparing for it, although in a manner not calculated to disturb the country. He knows war to be the most destructive of agents, creating nothing while destroying much, and he has until the last moment refrained from doing that which would hasten the coming of the destroyer. The parting of the ways is near at hand. A few days at farthest will bring out the facts. Then, if those facts are such as to demand an expression from the president, there is every reason to believe that he will give it in unmeasured terms. None will be more patriotic, none more anxious to protect our national honor than William Mc-Kinley.

LAW AND ORDER.

Lawlessness, disorder and drunkenness form a triplet which is a curse to any community. We would better reverse the order of designation and make it read thus: "DRUNKENNESS, DISORDER AND LAWLESSNESS." Drunkenness the cause; disorder and lawlessness the effect. Will any citizen, having regard for his word and for truth, assert that this city has had good government for the past two years, under the administration and control of Mayor A. V. Gilbert? Prize fights, chicken fights, gambling, slot machines, horse racing on our public thoroughfares, drunkenness, profanity and vulgarity have held full sway, to the utter disgrace of the city. The president of council, George Peach, not long since said: "I blame the policemen for not calling a halt on horse racing on Fifth street on Sunday.
I know where one of the force was when the racing was going on, and if the bad work is not stopped, I may be compelled to tell what I know respecting the policeman in question and his actions. I do not blame the mayor so much as I do the policemen. The mayor gives his orders and the police fail to carry those orders into effect." George Peach is a personal friend of the writer, who believes that the president of council speaks what he believes to be the truth, for George Peach has apparently aimed to do his duty, fearless of consequences. But George Peach does not fully know A. V. Gilbert.

The writer has it from the lips of two of the best officers who ever wore a uniform under A. V. Gilbert's administration, that the latter, in very many instances did not want the law enforced.
If Mayor Gilbert was made acquainted with the fact that horse racing was going on in the most central part of the city on the Sabbath day, in open defiance of law, to the imminent risk of the life and limbs of citizens, then it was his bounden, sworn duty to put an end, by summary measures, to this lawlessness; and when the mayor of a city intimates that he is powerless and that his officers will not do their duty, it is high time that he should step down and out, and let a manly man, of courage, nerve and decision of character take his place.
The best thing A. V. Gilbert can do, under existing circumstances, is to withdraw his name as a candidate, in the interest of law, order and clean government, then repent fully of his record in connection with a "wide open" city, and possibly the voters of Columbiana county may forgive him, after due trial, in order to test his repentance, as they have done with other men, and then grant to him the berth which his ambition aspires so earnestly to, the position of sheriff of the county.

The battle is on, voters of East Liverpool. It is between good and evil. A.
V. Gilbert represents the bad; Charles F. Bough the good. Of course you have your choice, for time and for eternity. Evil, as it always does, will work to its utmost for victory, caring nothing for truth, honor, probity, character or fair dealing. Good will use nothing but fair and honorable means. But every man and woman must be up and doing in this conflict, as upon the decision given by ballots on April 4, 1898, rests the life and prosperity and well-being of East Liverpool. Every minister, every layman, every mechanic and professional man, every merchant, every laborer, every voter who truly loves God and humanity, should work with a will for the election of Charles F. Bough.
Every woman in East Liverpool who loves father, husband, brother or son, and who believes in the happiness of home, and who dreads the curse of the whisky ring and intoxicants, as represented by A. V. Gilbert, should use every power God has given her for the defeat of A. V. Gilbert and the election of Charles F. Bough. True womanhood has great power, and, united, can accomplish much. In the name of home, humanity and heaven, true womanhood of East Liverpool, unite your efforts against the common foe and curse of America, the liquor traffic, and elect a mayor who will represent clean government and enforce existing laws.

DEVILISH DECEPTION.

The Lower Region Sheet Does Dirty Work.
as Usual.

The nasty sheet can't tell the truth.
It's issue of last night says that "the minister's association met in the Young Men's Christian association parlors yesterday afternoon and decided to endorse candidates for city offices." The unreliable and untrustworthy sheet again says:

"Dr. J. C. Taggart and Revs. O. S.
Reed and C. F. Swift were appointed a committee to select a list of candidates from the three tickets now in the field for city offices, and report at a meeting to be held at the Young Men's Christian association tomorrow."

It further states that "on Sunday next the plan is for each minister to call upon his congregation to support the candidates on this list."

We have it from absolute authority that this whole stuff from the lower region sheet is a mass of falsehood, along its usual line of iniquity and in favor of wrong doing, endeavoring to antagonize good men and lovers of good government and in favor of the whisky ring. The ministers of the association are simply uniting their forces against A. V. Gilbert, as the representative of the "whisky ring, in their belief (founding this belief by his past actions) and in favor of Charles F. Bough, the representative of law, order and clean government.

The ministers are united in favor of right, and will do royal battle, as the Master's soldiers, leaving the result in the Great Commander's hands. The News Review will give you the true inwardness of the meeting which occurred on March 22.

Signed a Contract.

George McNicol has signed a contract to play short stop for the Auburn team of the New York State League. Mc-Nicol last season played with the Toledo team of the Inter-state League, and was acknowledged to be a very fast man until he received an injury to his shoulder which compelled him to lay off the balance of the season. He is a good hitter, a speedy man on bases as well as a clever infielder, and will undoubtedly hold his position. Timothy Twaddle is a member of the same club.

Word received from George Carey states that he is in the pink of condition. Saturday his team will leave West Baden for Louisville, where they will play several exhibition games.

WATER SHUT OFF

There Will Be Some For Supper and Breakfast.

KEEPING A LITTLE FOR FIRE

The Engine Refused to Work, Having Never Been Repaired Since the Last Big Flood, and It Was Necessary to Cut Off the Supply--Damage Caused by the High Water Will Be Greater Than Was Expected.

While the water is falling and all danger of a greater flood has passed East Liverpool has by no means recovered, and the officials of the water department are watching closely.

The river rose steadily last night at the rate of three inches an hour. Then it dropped off to two, and at 4 o'clock this morning the anxious watchers at some of the river potteries discovered the water was stationary, having raised 13 1/2 inches since 8 o'clock. Then it began to fall, very slowly at first, but showing a better record as the day advanced. At a late hour this afternoon the river was still falling, and by tomorrow will be down so that the general public will not be seriously inconvenienced.

The railroad company succeeded in getting a train through to Pittsburg at noon today.

NO WATER.

The Supply Was Shut Off This Afternoon.

The most serious matter in connection with the flood is the water famine. It is here, a very well developed and unwelcome reality.

When the pumps were stopped yesterday afternoon by the rising water there was enough water on hand for a day. The water soon filled the boiler and engine room until only the top of the pumps could be seen, and persons who went near the pumping station approached it in skiffs.

The officials realized at once that prompt action was necessary, and orders were sent out which shut off the supply at the potteries. In order to make it doubly sure, Engineer Cox and Patrick McGeever closed the valves. In spite of these precautions the lower reservoir was empty at 11 o'clock.

The fire engine was called into service, and taken to the foot of Walnut street with the expectation of using it to pump water into the mains. Then it was found the engine was valueless. It was all right when provided with water from the plug, but the buckets had been worn out when it was used for the same purpose in 1892 and never repaired. When the attempt was made to pump water from the river the engine failed, and it was taken back to the fire station.

At this point it was decided to transfer the water from the upper reservoir to the lower, but the consumption throughout the city was so great that the department found it necessary to end the service. Workmen began at 2 o'clock to shut off the side lines, and soon after 3 o'clock the valves in the big regulator was turned, leaving the city without water except the little left in the mains. The water will be turned on again about 6 o'clock in order that consumers may have enough for supper, and will then be shut off until morning.

The action was taken in order that the greater part of the 750,000 gallons now in the lower reservoir be saved for use in case of fire. A man will guard the regulator all night, and should an alarm of fire be turned in he will start the water through the mains.

It is expected the river will fall enough by tomorrow morning to allow the pumps to be started, and in a few hours afterward there will be water in plenty. The potteries cannot start before Saturday.

THE REAL DAMAGE.

What the Potteries Along the River Suffered.

When the waters began to recede this morning the people most interested looked around in order that they might know the amount of damage their property had sustained.

The water in the sliphouse and old kilnshed at the Globe pottery reached a depth of 18 inches, while there was only eight inches in the packing shed. The loss will not exceed $75.

The Harker company did not escape so easily. The sliphouse, decorating department and the kilnshed were attacked by the muddy flood, and $400 will be expended in making repairs and cleaning.

Laughlin's kilnshed and decorating

Royal makes the food pure, wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

kilnshed spent last night with 3 1/2 feet of water while the packing shed had four feet. The loss will reach $500.

No ware was lost at the Thompson pottery, but the flood covered so much of the pottery that the loss is $250.

The plant of George C. Murphy & Co. was among the most unfortunate on the river front. The water covered the first floor to the depth of 3 1/2 feet, and it will require the expenditure of $400 to clean the place and pay for the ware broken while it was being moved.

Five feet of water found its way into Faulk's mill, but they were prepared for it, and the loss will not exceed $50.

The Williams mill was damaged $200, principally to the machinery. The water there was a foot deep.

At the flint mill no estimate of the damage could be given. The water there reached a depth of four feet, coming up to the flint cylinders.

The Edwin M. Knowles company sustained severe loss, the greatest of any firm in the city. It is estimated at $1,500. There was six feet of water in the plant.

In addition to these losses it must be remembered that the potteries are shut down, and that will be no little item when the damage caused by the flood is counted.

The street railway company is a heavy loser. No estimate has been placed on the damage, but it will be some time before the road is in good condition. No announcement as to when the regular service to Wellsville will be resumed has been made.

The loss occasioned by the city is considerable. A great many unpaved streets must be fixed, and in East End there are a number of places that must be repaired. A big slide on the hill road has cut off communication with the city, and, as the river road is under water, the people are much inconvenienced. The Mulberry street culvert is damaged to the extent of $150.

A great many people in the upper part of the city and Jethro will be compelled to repair the foundations of their houses, and the damage from that direction will alone amount to hundreds of dollars.

A MEETING

Of the Stockholders of the Specialty Glass Company for Tonight.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Specialty Glass company will be held this evening.

President J. M. Manor was seen at noon today and stated that he did not know as yet what the company would do in regard to their affairs, and would not express an opinion as to whether they would rebuild.

The Ministerial association present the following to the voters of East Liverpool:

To Voters of East Liverpool, Ohio,

"We the ministers of East Liverpool, recognizing the fact that the municipal life of our city is not what it ought to be; that the Lord's day is desecrated; that saloons are open during unlawful hours; that liquor is sold to minors, to men already intoxicated, to habitual drunkards; that law is openly and flagrantly violated; and when it is sought to correct any of these evils, a deaf ear is turned to all appeals; do now, in the interests of good government, call on all, irrespective of political affiliations, to aid in correcting existing evils and elect such men to office as will be true to their oaths of office, and faithful in executing the provisions of law.

"We, as ministers, are interested in all that pertains to the welfare of our fellow citizens, spiritually, morally and socially. The mission of the religion we preach is not simply to save the soul from everlasting death and prepare men for a better world to come, but also to make the present world better, and to do so by all righteous means. Its message is to the citizen in his relation to evil, as well as to all other duties.

"Civil government is a divine institution. Its design is to conserve all the interests of men as they live together in society. It is therefore important that it be established upon and conducted according to the principles of righteousness and that those called to make and execute the laws should be men of moral and upright lives. Men who fear God and who in their individual lives obey the laws they are set to execute. We therefore appeal not merely to the members of our respective congregations but to all lovers of law and order to aid in correcting existing evils.

"Our present mayor, who is a candidate for re-election, is known to be a patron of the saloons, and to thus unfit himself for the proper execution of the duties of his office. He has been seen to indulge in the use of intoxicating drinks on the Lord's day, thus showing himself to be in sympathy with law breakers and so unfit to hold the position he occupies. His policy has been to protect the saloon keeper in his violation of law, thus shamelessly trampling the oath of office which he took upon assuming its duties, thus proving himself unfit and unworthy of such a position.

"Whether he shall continue in the position he has too long disgraced is to be determined by your suffrages on the 4th of April. By the magnanimous retirement of the candidate of the Democratic party in the interest of good government the issue is squarely before you as to which of two men shall be the next mayor of our city. The one the friend, the other the foe of intemperance. The one the representative of bad, the other of good order.

"If all the friends of good government and clean city rule can be prevailed on to rise above party domination, as we believe they should, there can be no doubt of the issue.

"We, therefore, confidently appeal to you that, irrespective of party ties, you give your votes in support of the only candidate for mayor, C. F. Bough, from whom we can hope to have anything like a clean city government.

"Let us make our decision of the question a matter of conscience and seek to cast our ballots intelligently, and for what we know to be the best interests of our city, and we believe the victory will be on the side of right."

"In this work we confidently appeal to all Christian women of our city to aid, by urging husbands, sons and brothers to cast their ballots for C. F. Bough.

"The whole matter thus presents itself to us. If in favor of the desecration of the Lord's day--if in favor of further perpetuation of gambling devices--if in favor of a 'wide open' city, vote for A. V. Gilbert.

"If in favor of the enforcement of law, if in favor of checking the power and curtailment of the influence of the saloon, if in favor of prosecuting evil doers, whether they be liquor sellers or liquor drinkers, vote for Charles F. Bough."

WATER SHUT OFF

There Will Be Some For Supper and Breakfast.

KEEPING A LITTLE FOR FIRE

The Engine Refused to Work, Having Never Been Repaired Since the Last Big Flood, and It Was Necessary to Cut Off the Supply--Damage Caused by the High Water Will Be Greater Than Was Expected.

While the water is falling and all danger of a greater flood has passed East Liverpool has by no means recovered, and the officials of the water department are watching closely.

The river rose steadily last night at the rate of three inches an hour. Then it dropped off to two, and at 4 o'clock this morning the anxious watchers at some of the river potteries discovered the water was stationary, having raised 13 1/2 inches since 8 o'clock. Then it began to fall, very slowly at first, but showing a better record as the day advanced. At a late hour this afternoon the river was still falling, and by tomorrow will be down so that the general public will not be seriously inconvenienced.

The railroad company succeeded in getting a train through to Pittsburg at noon today.

NO WATER.

The Supply Was Shut Off This Afternoon.

The most serious matter in connection with the flood is the water famine. It is here, a very well developed and unwelcome reality.

When the pumps were stopped yesterday afternoon by the rising water there was enough water on hand for a day. The water soon filled the boiler and engine room until only the top of the pumps could be seen, and persons who went near the pumping station approached it in skiffs.

The officials realized at once that prompt action was necessary, and orders were sent out which shut off the supply at the potteries. In order to make it doubly sure, Engineer Cox and Patrick McGeever closed the valves. In spite of these precautions the lower reservoir was empty at 11 o'clock.

The fire engine was called into service, and taken to the foot of Walnut street with the expectation of using it to pump water into the mains. Then it was found the engine was valueless. It was all right when provided with water from the plug, but the buckets had been worn out when it was used for the same purpose in 1893 and never repaired. When the attempt was made to pump water from the river the engine failed, and it was taken back to the fire station.

At this point it was decided to transfer the water from the upper reservoir to the lower, but the consumption throughout the city was so great that the department found it necessary to end the service. Workmen began at 2 o'clock to shut off the side lines, and soon after 3 o'clock the valves in the big regulator was turned, leaving the city without water except the little left in the mains. The water will be turned on again about 6 o'clock in order that consumers may have enough for supper, and will then be shut off until morning.

The action was taken in order that the greater part of the 750,000 gallons now in the lower reservoir be saved for use in case of fire. A man will guard the regulator all night, and should an alarm of fire be turned in he will start the water through the mains.

It is expected the river will fall enough by tomorrow morning to allow the pumps to be started, and in a few hours afterward there will be water in plenty. The potteries cannot start before Saturday.

THE REAL DAMAGE.

What the Potteries Along the River Suffered.

When the waters began to recede this morning the people most interested looked around in order that they might know the amount of damage their property had sustained.

The water in the sliphonse and old kilnshed at the Globe pottery reached a depth of 18 inches, while there was only eight inches in the packing shed. The loss will not exceed $75.

The Harker company did not escape so easily. The sliphonse, decorating department and the kilnshed were attacked by the muddy flood, and $400 will be expended in making repairs and cleaning.

Laughlin's kilnshed and decorating

Royal makes the food pure, wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

kilnshed spent last night with 3 1/2 feet of water while the packing shed had four feet. The loss will reach $500.

No ware was lost at the Thompson pottery, but the flood covered so much of the pottery that the loss is $250.

The plant of George C. Murphy & Co. was among the most unfortunate on the river front. The water covered the first floor to the depth of 3 1/2 feet, and it will require the expenditure of $400 to clean the place and pay for the ware broken while it was being moved.

Five feet of water found its way into Faulk's mill, but they were prepared for it, and the loss will not exceed $50.

The Williams mill was damaged $200, principally to the machinery. The water there was a foot deep.

At the flint mill no estimate of the damage could be given. The water there reached a depth of four feet, coming up to the flint cylinders.

The Edwin M. Knowles company sustained severe loss, the greatest of any firm in the city. It is estimated at $1,500. There was six feet of water in the plant.

In addition to these losses it must be remembered that the potteries are shut down, and that will be no little item when the damage caused by the flood is counted.

The street railway company is a heavy loser. No estimate has been placed on the damage, but it will be some time before the road is in good condition. No announcement as to when the regular service to Wellsville will be resumed has been made.

The loss occasioned by the city is considerable. A great many unpaved streets must be fixed, and in East End there are a number of places that must be repaired. A big slide on the hill road has cut off communication with the city, and, as the river road is under water, the people are much inconvenienced. The Mulberry street culvert is damaged to the extent of $150.

A great many people in the upper part of the city and Jethro will be compelled to repair the foundations of their houses, and the damage from that direction will alone amount to hundreds of dollars.

A MEETING

Of the Stockholders of the Specialty Called For Tonight.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Specialty Glass company will be held this evening.

President J. M. Manor was seen at noon today and stated that he did not know as yet what the company would do in regard to their affairs, and would not express an opinion as to whether they would rebuild.

ACTION OF MINISTERS

They Speak For Right and Clean Government.

CHARLES F. BOUGH THEIR CHOICE

The Ministerial Association Have Determined to Work and Vote and Pray For Good Government--The Association Asks the Aid of All True Men and Women.

The Ministerial association present the following to the voters of East Liverpool:

To Voters of East Liverpool, Ohio,

"We the ministers of East Liverpool, recognizing the fact that the municipal life of our city is not what it ought to be; that the Lord's day is desecrated; that saloons are open during unlawful hours; that liquor is sold to minors, to men already intoxicated, to habitual drunkards; that law is openly and flagrantly violated; and when it is sought to correct any of these evils, a deaf ear is turned to all appeals; do now, in the interests of good government, call on all, irrespective of political affiliations, to aid in correcting existing evils and elect such men to office as will be true to their oaths of office, and faithful in executing the provisions of law.

FAITH IN THE TRUSTEES

President Peach Thinks the Water Works Books

ARE ALL IN FIRST CLASS ORDER

He Appointed the Auditing Committees at Last Night's Meeting—Policemen to Be Put on Salary—Some Other Business Was Transacted.

Council was in session last evening less than an hour, but transacted a considerable amount of business.

There were present Members Peach, Olmhausen, Stewart, Cain and Challis when the session was called to order at 7:45 o'clock. The minutes were read and approved, and the ordinance appropriating property for sewerage and other purposes, the Tanyard, bill was placed on its third reading. Mr. Stewart suggested that the ordinance be laid over until the next meeting as it was proposed as a sanitary measure and council now has another important feature to consider in connection with the Tanyard run sewer. His suggestion was acted upon, and the ordinance dividing the First ward and constituting the Fifth ward was heard upon its third reading. Mr. Stewart said he did not think council had given the matter proper consideration and out of courtesy to the member from the First ward who was not present the matter should be laid over. It was not seconded.

Mr. Olmhausen moved an amendment to the ordinance that all the wards in the city be divided, but received no second, and Mr. Peach calling Mr. Stewart to the chair said:

"It is not the desire of the member from the First ward that the ordinance should pass, and the only way to get rid of it without saddling it with a lot of amendments is to kill it." The vote was taken on the passage of the ordinance and resulted in its defeat, Mr. Challis being the only member to support it.

The ordinances placing the mayor on salary and creating the office of chief of police, in order to dispose of them, were laid on the table indefinitely.

An ordinance to establish grade lines on College street from Forest street to Potters alley was heard on its first reading. Mr. Peach explained that he wanted to build on the street, but did not care to do so until after the grade was established.

An ordinance to improve Pennsylvania avenue from Mulberry street to the east line of the land of T. J. Andrews was placed on its first reading.

Mr. Stewart made a motion that at the next meeting the clerk inform council whether the abutting property would stand the assessment, as, in his opinion, it would not. He was in favor of the ordinance, but would not support the measure unless the land would stand the assessment.

An ordinance was next introduced to amend section 250 of the rules for the governing of policemen and nightwatchmen. The amendment provides that policemen and nightwatchmen in the employ of the city shall take oath to faithfully perform their duties, and shall give bond for $500 with approved sureties and shall receive as a compensation $2 per day and no fees whatever.

The blank contracts from the Central District and Printing telegraph company for the two new telephones which they propose to give the city were received. Mr. Cain moved they be accepted and Mr. Stewart said: "I wish to express my personal thanks for the energetic way in which Manager Swaney acted in the matter and it is due to him that we received all and more than we asked. I move the motion be amended and council tender him a vote of thanks." Mr. Cain accepted the amendment without a vote and it carried unanimously.

President Peach then announced the auditing committees as follows:

Water works—R. J. Marshall, George Olmhausen, Chal Stewart.

Clerk and treasurer—John Horwell, J. C. Cain, George Peach.

Street commissioner—J. C. Cain, James Challis.

Mayor—J. C. Cain, Chal Stewart.

In regard to the committees President Peach said:

"I wish the committee who audit the books of the water works will make an itemized report as near as possible, and do their work very carefully. Of all the branches of city government there is none that cause as much trouble as the water works, and the committee should endeavor to furnish the citizens with a complete report. I feel confident that after the committee have done their best, given the books the closest possible scrutiny, they will find them as straight as a string."

The water works trustees then presented their annual report showing their receipts to have been $28,388.66 while their expenditures were $28,490.29 leaving a balance on the wrong side of the ledger of $101.63.

The clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for paving Bradshaw avenue, and Mr. Stewart asked if the solicitor had presented the ordinance to change the name of Summit lane to Diamond street. He had not done so and Mr. Challis called attention to the condition of Chester street. It was referred to the street committee.

Mr. Challis wanted an ordinance introduced to grade Bank street from Avondale street to Huston line, but Mr. Stewart said he would vote for no more improvements until the clerk ascertained whether the abutting property would stand the assessment.

The clerk was instructed to ascertain whether the abutting property on Spring street and Basil avenue from West Market street to Lincoln avenue would stand the assessment for grading and paving and council adjourned.

GEN. MORRIS' DUCK HUNT.

The Indiana Veteran Takes to the Kankakee Swamps in His Houseboat.

General Thomas Morris of Indianapolis has gone to the swamps of the Kankakee for his annual duck hunt. Though 87 years of age, his shotgun is just as deadly for the birds as it was when he was 40. He has been taking trips to the swamps for nearly half a century. In one day last year he felled 100 ducks. He takes no stimulants and fights malaria and chills with quinine alone. After shooting all day he eats a hearty supper, plays a game of euchre, reads his Bible and retires to sleep like a log. His vitality is remarkable. He has a houseboat which is pulled up and down stream by a tug.

The fight of ducks is unusually heavy this year. It is due to the splendid feeding. At this season the river is out of its banks and covers adjacent woodlands with but a foot of water. Under this acorns are found in limitless quantities and the ducks dive for them. The seed of the smartweed, which is said to give duck meat an admirable flavor, and wild rice are also found. The ducks that are found in the Indiana swamps are the teal, mallard, sprig tail, blackjack, widgeon, wood duck, redhead, blue-wing and now and then a canvasback.

Last year General Morris sent his hunting companion to Kankakee to lease a desirable hunting ground. The lease was signed for ten years. General Morris was much put out because it was not made for a longer period.—New York Sun.

Smelling Contests Were One of the Features Introduced at a Hartford Party.

At the closing party of the Colonial Whist club the other evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Loydon in Hartford one of the features introduced in the way of entertainment after the playing made a good deal of amusement.

Twelve miniature vials were filled with liquids of uniform red color, but all of different odors. The test was for each guest to name the several odors and write their names on a card. The odors chosen were familiar, such as witch hazel, cologne, wintergreen, pennyroyal, rose, lemon, etc., and it would be supposed that there would be little or no difficulty in identifying them, but it was not so easy after all, for the reason that the stronger odors seemed to dull the sense of smell as to the more delicate ones.

Some of the mistakes were very amusing. The highest score, 11 out of the 12, was made by one of the gentlemen, and as a rule the scores by the gentlemen were rather better than those of the ladies. A curious fact was that a vial containing a liquid without any odor whatever was wrongly guessed by all the ladies and was identified as water by only two of the party, both gentlemen.—Hartford Times.

A Deadly Toy Squawker.

Fourteen-year-old Inez Loomis, the only daughter of Dr. Loomis of Toledo, died recently from the results of strangulation. She was returning home from school with several companions and was blowing one of the toy squawkers now so common among the children. As she drew in upon the toy it flew into her mouth and lodged in her throat. She fell upon the sidewalk and was carried into a nearby residence. Doctors were called, but their combined efforts failed to dislodge the obstruction. The child died almost instantly.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

AN AFRICAN SCOUT.

F. R. BURNHAM, M'LIMO'S SLAYER, IS GOING TO THE KLONDIKE.

At the Peril of His Life He Prevented a Massacre by Savages by Shooting the Great Prophet of the Matabele—Was an American Scout.

F. R. Burnham, one of the two survivors of the Wilson expedition, which was massacred in Matabeleland about five years ago, arrived on the Lucania recently. He is going to the Klondike "to have a look about," he said. Then he expects to return to South Africa. He left New York immediately for the Pacific coast.

Mr. Burnham is a noted African scout, although born in the United States and gaining his first experience as a scout on the western plains. It was because of his skill in woodcraft and his knowledge of the ways of savages that he was called upon by Cecil Rhodes of the South African company to kill M'limo, the wicked prophet of the Matabele savages, in 1896.

It became known in the spring of 1896 that M'limo had planned to kill every white man in Matabeleland in the latter part of June. In this emergency Mr. Burnham received hurried orders from Cecil Rhodes to report immediately to Mr. Armstrong, superintendent of the Mangu district. It was apparent that the only way to quell the uprising of the savages was to kill M'limo, and Mr. Burnham was considered the only man who could undertake this hazardous task with any likelihood of success.

He and Mr. Armstrong started on their perilous mission on June 23. They were alone. They advanced slowly through the enemy's country, keeping to the lowlands and following the valleys to avoid detection, and at night they struck the low rocky kopjes, the base of the Matopos hills, for which they were bound.

After passing the night in the underbrush 12 miles from their destination they started on the most perilous part of their journey at daybreak of June 28. They could hear the roll of the war drums as they crept along, and more than once they were forced to beat a quick retreat and seek cover to avoid detection. By slow stages they neared the cave of the prophet. The call had already gone forth for the savages to assemble for final instructions, and an hour's delay might mean the death of every white man in Matabeleland.

Slowly the intrepid scouts pushed forward to the cave on top of the hill. When within 600 yards of the prophet's sanctuary, they found the way blocked by a large party of savages.

They knew a council of war was being held and that the savages would not move for some time. Cautiously they approached the summit from another direction. They fastened their horses in a thicket and climbed carefully over the boulders until they came to an open space of grass.

Each man clutched the handle of his knife, for it was decided not to shoot unless necessary. Crouching very low, they dashed across the open glade and began to climb the boulders at the entrance to the cave, while on all sides the savages were chanting their war songs and preparing for the massacre.

At the summit of the hill two great rocks, upheaved by some prehistoric earthquake, leaned together in the shape of a letter "A," forming a cave, in which lived the Matabele prophet. Mr. Burnham and his companion reached it undiscovered and dropped down into the darkness.

They crawled on their hands and knees along a stone passage and came upon M'limo, gaunt and thin, sitting on a stone. He began an incantation and suddenly stopped. Swinging around he discovered the white faces of the intruders.

M'limo reached for an assegai, but before he could grasp it Burnham raised his rifle and fired.

M'limo, the prophet of the Matabele, the god of the savages and enemy to all white men, threw up his arms and with never a groan fell dead.

Armstrong and Burnham made a hurried escape from the cave, reached their horses, and after a hair raising ride over the boulders, hotly pursued by the savages, returned to Mangu station in safety. The death of M'limo ended the uprising, and Mr. Burnham became famous.—New York Herald.

Character In Footgear.

"Shoes," said the aggressive philosopher to the meek looking woman, "always acquire the traits of their wearer. The old proverb about 'wear at the toe, spend as you go,' etc., is only a tenth part of what a worn shoe can tell of its owner's disposition. Now look at mine. Like me, ain't they?"

They were. Stubby, square, thick, self opinionated looking boots, they seemed to breathe aggressiveness from every seam.

"Now let's see yours." The demure looking woman poked one shoe out timidly. It was long and narrow, with a very pointed toe. It was a stiff, slim, unbending sort of shoe. The reader of character in footgear looked dubious. "Hem! Perhaps you are not like your shoe," he said evasively. "But I believe in the science, and so I don't think it would be safe for me to tell you what I read in the indications. We—we might both regret it. Good morning!"

BUY UNION MADE GOODS.

Union Workmen and Sympathizers Should Ask for the Label.

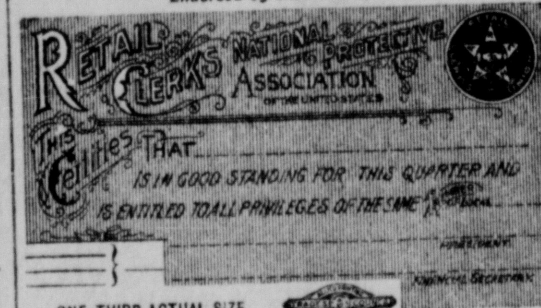

It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others?

The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent working hours, and union labor employed.

The Union Label committee of Trades council having been instructed to secure and publish a fac-simile of different Union Labels, in order to more thoroughly acquaint the public with the same, they herewith present the following. It is the purpose of the committee to insert other labels, and when making purchases you should ask for labeled goods. Be on your guard for false and counterfeit labels.

President Peach Thinks the Water Works Books

ARE ALL IN FIRST CLASS ORDER

He Appointed the Auditing Committees at Last Night's Meeting—Policemen to Be Put on Salary—Some Other Business Was Transacted.

Council was in session last evening less than an hour, but transacted a considerable amount of business.

There were present Members Peach, Olmhausen, Stewart, Cain and Challis when the session was called to order at 7:45 o'clock. The minutes were read and approved, and the ordinance appropriating property for sewerage and other purposes, the Tanyard, bill was placed on its third reading. Mr. Stewart suggested that the ordinance be laid over until the next meeting as it was proposed as a sanitary measure and council now has another important feature to consider in connection with the Tanyard run sewer. His suggestion was acted upon, and the ordinance dividing the First ward and constituting the Fifth ward was heard upon its third reading. Mr. Stewart said he did not think council had given the matter proper consideration and out of courtesy to the member from the First ward who was not present the matter should be laid over. It was not seconded.

Mr. Olmhausen moved an amendment to the ordinance that all the wards in the city be divided, but received no second, and Mr. Peach calling Mr. Stewart to the chair said:

"It is not the desire of the member from the First ward that the ordinance should pass, and the only way to get rid of it without saddling it with a lot of amendments is to kill it." The vote was taken on the passage of the ordinance and resulted in its defeat, Mr. Challis being the only member to support it.

The ordinances placing the mayor on salary and creating the office of chief of police, in order to dispose of them, were laid on the table indefinitely.

An ordinance to establish grade lines on College street from Forest street to Potters alley was heard on its first reading. Mr. Peach explained that he wanted to build on the street, but did not care to do so until after the grade was established.

An ordinance to improve Pennsylvania avenue from Mulberry street to the east line of the land of T. J. Andrews was placed on its first reading.

Mr. Stewart made a motion that at the next meeting the clerk inform council whether the abutting property would stand the assessment, as, in his opinion, it would not. He was in favor of the ordinance, but would not support the measure unless the land would stand the assessment.

An ordinance was next introduced to amend section 250 of the rules for the governing of policemen and nightwatchmen. The amendment provides that policemen and nightwatchmen in the employ of the city shall take oath to faithfully perform their duties, and shall give bond for $500 with approved sureties and shall receive as a compensation $2 per day and no fees whatever.

The blank contracts from the Central District and Printing telegraph company for the two new telephones which they propose to give the city were received. Mr. Cain moved they be accepted and Mr. Stewart said: "I wish to express my personal thanks for the energetic way in which Manager Swaney acted in the matter and it is due to him that we received all and more than we asked. I move the motion be amended and council tender him a vote of thanks." Mr. Cain accepted the amendment without a vote and it carried unanimously.

President Peach then announced the auditing committees as follows:

Water works—R. J. Marshall, George Olmhausen, Chal Stewart.

Clerk and treasurer—John Horwell, J. C. Cain, George Peach.

Street commissioner—J. C. Cain, James Challis.

Mayor—J. C. Cain, Chal Stewart.

In regard to the committees President Peach said:

"I wish the committee who audit the books of the water works will make an itemized report as near as possible, and do their work very carefully. Of all the branches of city government there is none that cause as much trouble as the water works, and the committee should endeavor to furnish the citizens with a complete report. I feel confident that after the committee have done their best, given the books the closest possible scrutiny, they will find them as straight as a string."

The water works trustees then presented their annual report showing their receipts to have been $28,388.66 while their expenditures were $28,490.29 leaving a balance on the wrong side of the ledger of $101.63.

The clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for paving Bradshaw avenue, and Mr. Stewart asked if the solicitor had presented the ordinance to change the name of Summit lane to Diamond street. He had not done so and Mr. Challis called attention to the condition of Chester street. It was referred to the street committee.

Mr. Challis wanted an ordinance introduced to grade Bank street from Avondale street to Huston line, but Mr. Stewart said he would vote for no more improvements until the clerk ascertained whether the abutting property would stand the assessment.

BARGES BROKE AWAY

The Jutte Company Suffered a Big Loss.

KENNEDY AND TWO MEN

Were on Board When a Shore Line Snapped and the Fleet Went Down the River. Recruits at Jethro—The Rescue Could Have Prevented the Accident.

There were some anxious people in the city last night when it became known that William C. Kennedy and four men had gone floating down the Ohio along with six barges that had broken away from the Jutte coal float at the foot of Market street soon after 3:30 in the afternoon.

When it became evident yesterday morning that the river would reach flood height, W. H. Surles asked the Pittsburg office to send a boat to his aid. The reply came that the Rescue would start as soon as possible. Had the boat arrived here a few hours sooner the accident would not have happened.

Late yesterday afternoon Kennedy, Jim Grim and another man went out on the barges to tighten the lines. While they were at work, and without the slightest warning, a shore line snapped. That threw too much weight on the other ropes, and in another moment the fleet of five loaded barges and one empty went out into the stream. Escape for Kennedy and his crew was impossible, and the last seen of the barges they were on board.

When the fleet approached Jethro it was seen by two men in a skiff. They hastened out in the stream and were soon beside a barge. It was their intention to secure a line, take it to shore, and if possible stop the runaways. They climbed on board, and it was perhaps the most fortunate acts of their lives, for at that moment the barge swung in, and striking land, crushed the skiff as though it had been an eggshell. There was nothing for them to do but remain on the barge, and thus the fleet had five passengers instead of three.

The towboat Rescue arrived at the float some time after the line snapped. As soon as possible it started after the fleet, making rapid time down stream. The Pittsburg office was immediately notified of the happening, and telephone messages were sent to points down the river, asking that a close watch be kept for the runaways. Meantime the remaining barges had been securely fastened at the foot of Market street, and the anxious ones waited for intelligence from some point down the river.

The Rescue soon sighted the barges and giving a few sharp blasts on the whistle to encourage the men waited for a chance to rescue them. At Yellow Creek a barge went down, but the passengers were not hurt. At a point near Cumberland the Rescue caught the fleet, and tied in at that place. It returned here with the empty at midnight.

LOST A FLOAT OF SAND.

Ed Schneider Was Very Unfortunate Yesterday.

A flat containing 1,200 bushels of sand struck a tree near the residence of E. D. Marshall on the Southside yesterday afternoon and sank immediately. It was owned by Ed Schneider, who was on the flat bringing it to this city. The loss will amount to about $250.

A coal boat bottom also owned by Ed Schneider broke away from its moorings at the Globe pottery yesterday afternoon and floated down the river. Shortly before this several coal barges were seen passing the city, and one of them sank when opposite the ruins of the Specialty glass works. The others went down stream.

LOOKING OVER THE GROUND.

Judge Johnson Is Calling on His Political Friends.

The Alliance Review has this to say of an interesting matter: "Hon. J. R. Johnson, of Youngstown, was in Alliance today calling upon his friends, personal and political. Judge Johnson makes no concealment of his errand. He frankly says that he is looking over the field in this congressional district to observe the conditions, that he may decide whether or not to enter the contest this fall."

THE CHINESE CENSUS.

Through Li Hung Chang's Efforts the People of China Will Be Counted.

Early in 1898 the first complete census of the Chinese empire is to be taken. The approaching enumeration has been ordered only after numerous conferences between Earl Li Hung Chang, the empress dowager and the emperor. It came about in this way: At last year's meeting of the international statistical institute, held in Bern, a committee, appointed to consider ways and means for taking a "world census," decided that the aid of Li Hung Chang must be enlisted. They met him in Berlin and secured a promise of his influence at Peking.

On his return to China, Earl Li broached the subject to the empress dowager. He explained the object and need of a census and that the total number of people in the world could not be arrived at unless China did her share. The European countries, he said, wanted to know, and besides he could not go back on his promise once made, because, according to a Chinese proverb, "when the superior man has once spoken, four horses cannot pull back his word."

Her majesty gave him a line to the emperor. At first his majesty was disposed to resent the interference of a committee of unknown Europeans, but Li explained that in other countries a census was customary and that if China was to be on a level with other countries she must take a census. The emperor finally gave his consent and provided Li with an autograph order to see that the wishes of the Swiss committee were carried out.

The next step was to transmit the imperial orders to the governors general of the provinces. The governors have sent the order out to the district magistrates, and on the next official day they will summon all the local constables and explain that this time there is to be a full and fair count.—New York Sun.

INDIANA'S BOY PATRIOT.

He Sent His Savings, Twenty-four Two Cent Stamps, to Help Build a Warship.

In Secretary Long's mail the other day was an envelope containing 24 cent postage stamps and this letter from Dan Wallingford, 7 years old, of 442 North Penn street, Indianapolis:

"I have been wanting to do something for my country. I think now is the time, so I send you all the pennies I have to help build a new ship."

There was another note in the envelope from Dan's mother. She said the boy was a great reader of American history and patriotic literature and had written the letter and sent the stamps entirely without suggestion from any other person. The stamps were purchased with money from his savings bank and represented all it contained. An appropriate letter of thanks will be sent to the young patriot. The navy department does not know what to do with the stamps. Officials of Secretary Long's office say that they think the next battleship could appropriately be named the Dan Wallingford, but the law provides that all battleships shall be called after the states of the Union. Perhaps the very smallest torpedo boat which congress will authorize this year may be named in his honor.—New York Sun.

SIGSBEE OF THE MAINE.

An Uncle of the Gallant Captain Talks About His Nephew.

John Sigsbee of Cortland, N. Y., is an uncle of Captain Sigsbee of the Maine.

"I have known the captain ever since he was born," said Mr. Sigsbee, "and a more wide awake, energetic man does not exist. From his boyhood up I remember him as a remarkably nifty lad, keen, quick witted and yet quiet and never disposed to blow his own horn. The published accounts of his self possession at the time of the explosion of the Maine did not surprise me in the least. It is what I would have expected of him."

"If he has said he doesn't know anything about what caused the explosion, you can rely upon it that it is true. Whether it was by the treachery of the Spaniards or by some other means, it was something that he was in nowise responsible for, I am sure."—New York World.

To Convert Ingersoll.

William Crowley, the colored evangelist, who claims to be a John the Baptist and that he precedes Christ only a short time, is working wonders among the people in Emporia, Kan. He has now over 100 followers. Of these he has baptized 23 in the Cottonwood river. The other afternoon five were immersed in the icy water, four of whom were white people. He says he has received a personal message from God to go to Washington and convert Bob Ingersoll.—Chicago Tribune.

What He Thought.

"I know," said the candidate for the small office to the veteran, "that you wouldn't sell your vote." "No, suh, I wouldn't!" "That you can't be bribed?" "Now yo' talkin, suh!" "But suppose I should make you a present of $10? What would you think?" The voter looked thoughtful, then said, "Well, Marse Jim, jedgin by yo' pas' record, I'd either think yo'd done los' yo' min', or else yo's in de com' feitin' business!"—Atlanta Constitution.

HE IS A RAT DRIVER.

LUMINOUS PAINT SUCCEEDS WHERE BELLS, TAR AND TRAPS FAILED.

A Man Who Makes Good Money Clearing Warehouses and Other Concerns Around New York of Troublesome Rodents—Began the Business in Stockholm.

Habitues of Riverside drive, between Seventy-fifth and Eightieth streets, on very sunny days have noticed a middle aged man carrying a case, which appears to be about three feet long by one foot deep and two feet wide. It is apparently a black leather case with an ordinary grip handle to the upper part, and the man, seeking some unfrequented piece of wall, generally one of the embrasures, places his case on the wall, smokes his pipe and loiters around, looking at the ever changing river and its traffic. If others come around, he moves on, but if not he may stay there from two to three hours in the full sun. He is a rat catcher, or rather a rat driver. He works only in large warehouses and does not touch the smaller dwelling houses or flats except in rare cases.

He is a Scandinavian whom nothing will warm to conversation but his native tongue. His case is wood on the back, ends and bottom and wire on the front and top. There are neat spring shades which roll down over front and top. In this cage are eight or ten large rats. If any one comes near, down go the shades, but as long as the coast is clear the shades are up and the rats are running around basking in the sunlight. If he takes you into his confidence, he will tell you that it is with these rats he clears buildings. The other day he said:

"When I was living in Stockholm, the large granaries were full of rats, and a reward was offered to clear them. Many tried. Traps were set by the hundred.

"One man built a room as large as an ordinary parlor, cased it with tin and fed the rats with oatmeal scented with oil of aniseed, gradually laying trains of this feed to the room until he had all the rats on a string. Then he fitted an automatic drop to the entrance, and when his rats were feeding he caged them all, several hundred. The first man who did this went into the room with dogs to kill them and was nearly eaten himself, like that farmer out west a few weeks ago. The second man starved and then poisoned his, but in a week there were just as many rats as ever. The supply was inexhaustible from the rivers and quays. Poisoning was no good because of the terrific smell, and so I took the matter in hand.

"I thought it over and finally set a trap and caught some rats. Then I tied a piece of wire round their necks, to which I slung a little tinkling brass bell, and then I let the bell ringers loose in the building they had been caught in. They knew the runs and went to join their friends and relatives, who of course ran from the bells. The more they ran the more ran the bell carriers, until the building was 'hoo-doo' in rat language and not a rat would enter.

"If I could have lured back my bell carriers, all would have been well; but, familiarity breeding contempt, the rats grew accustomed to them and in a few months were back again, and as building after building had been cleared by this trick there was not a rat in the city who did not know of the bells. Then I tried tarring some rats with strong smelling coal tar, which rats cannot bear and will avoid if possible, and this answered for awhile, but a fire occurred, and a rat, tar coated, ran out of the blazing building with his fur ablaze and, going into another building not in danger, set it on fire—wood gets very dry in those old buildings over there—and so an ordinance was passed prohibiting the use of tar.

"I had made money, and I came to this country. I did well for some years, but in the depression my capital ran short and I failed; so then I took to clearing business places of rats again and am doing quite well. The first thing is to learn the lay of the building where the rats come from. If a grain elevator is near, clear the elevator and trap those in the other places. Rats very seldom run around more than one building, except as an overflow. Then, having determined that point, try the tar, then the bell, and after that these fellows in the cage. They are coated with luminous paint, and being exposed to the sunlight here can be taken to a building tonight, loosed and will fly through the runs, spreading fear wherever they go and creating a stampede. If you have ever seen luminous paint effects, you can readily understand it. The great beauty of this plan is that the rats do not live more than 24 to 48 hours after a coating with this paint, so the novelty never wears off. It is a preparation of lime, which I discovered for myself, and has to be newly made and mixed like a varnish. This closes the pores of the skin, and after chasing around to catch up with the flying relatives the rat is in a sweat, and that finishes him, and they never get used to it. Will a rat sweat? Well, you cage a rat, and then let a terrier roll the cage around for a few minutes, and you will see a rat as damp as if dipped into a pail of water. I get as high as $20 a month for keeping some places in this way clear of rats and work several

The Jutte Company Suffered a Big Loss.

KENNEDY AND TWO MEN

Were on Board When a Shore Line Snapped and the Fleet Went Down the River. Recruits at Jethro—The Rescue Could Have Prevented the Accident.

There were some anxious people in the city last night when it became known that William C. Kennedy and four men had gone floating down the Ohio along with six barges that had broken away from the Jutte coal float at the foot of Market street soon after 8:30 in the afternoon.

When it became evident yesterday morning that the river would reach flood height, W. H. Surles asked the Pittsburg office to send a boat to his aid. The reply came that the Rescue would start as soon as possible. Had the boat arrived here a few hours sooner the accident would not have happened.

Late yesterday afternoon Kennedy, Jim Grim and another man went out on the barges to tighten the lines. While they were at work, and without the slightest warning, a shore line snapped. That threw too much weight on the other ropes, and in another moment the fleet of five loaded barges and one empty went out into the stream. Escape for Kennedy and his crew was impossible, and the last seen of the barges they were on board.

When the fleet approached Jethro it was seen by two men in a skiff. They hastened out in the stream and were soon beside a barge. It was their intention to secure a line, take it to shore, and if possible stop the runaways. They climbed on board, and it was perhaps the most fortunate acts of their lives, for at that moment the barge swung in, and striking land, crushed the skiff as though it had been an eggshell. There was nothing for them to do but remain on the barge, and thus the fleet had five passengers instead of three.

The towboat Rescue arrived at the float some time after the line snapped. As soon as possible it started after the fleet, making rapid time down stream. The Pittsburg office was immediately notified of the happening, and telephone messages were sent to points down the river, asking that a close watch be kept for the runaways. Meantime the remaining barges had been securely fastened at the foot of Market street, and the anxious ones waited for intelligence from some point down the river.

The Rescue soon sighted the barges and giving a few sharp blasts on the whistle to encourage the men waited for a chance to rescue them. At Yellow Creek a barge went down, but the passengers were not hurt. At a point near Cumberland the Rescue caught the fleet, and tied in at that place. It returned here with the empty at midnight.

LOST A FLOAT OF SAND.

Ed Schneider Was Very Unfortunate Yesterday.

A flat containing 1,200 bushels of sand struck a tree near the residence of E. D. Marshall on the Southside yesterday afternoon and sank immediately. It was owned by Ed Schneider, who was on the flat bringing it to this city. The loss will amount to about $250.

A coal boat bottom also owned by Ed Schneider broke away from its moorings at the Globe pottery yesterday afternoon and floated down the river. Shortly before this several coal barges were seen passing the city, and one of them sank when opposite the ruins of the Specialty glass works. The others went down stream.

THE CHINESE CENSUS.

Through Li Hung Chang's Efforts the People of China Will Be Counted.

Early in 1898 the first complete census of the Chinese empire is to be taken. The approaching enumeration has been ordered only after numerous conferences between Earl Li Hung Chang, the empress dowager and the emperor. It came about in this way: At last year's meeting of the international statistical institute, held in Bern, a committee, appointed to consider ways and means for taking a "world census," decided that the aid of Li Hung Chang must be enlisted. They met him in Berlin and secured a promise of his influence at Peking.

On his return to China, Earl Li broached the subject to the empress dowager. He explained the object and need of a census and that the total number of people in the world could not be arrived at unless China did her share. The European countries, he said, wanted to know, and besides he could not go back on his promise once made, because, according to a Chinese proverb, "when the superior man has once spoken, four horses cannot pull back his word."

Her majesty gave him a line to the emperor. At first his majesty was disposed to resent the interference of a committee of unknown Europeans, but Li explained that in other countries a census was customary and that if China was to be on a level with other countries she must take a census. The emperor finally gave his consent and provided Li with an autograph order to see that the wishes of the Swiss committee were carried out.

The next step was to transmit the imperial orders to the governors general of the provinces. The governors have sent the order out to the district magistrates, and on the next official day they will summon all the local constables and explain that this time there is to be a full and fair count.—New York Sun.

INDIANA'S BOY PATRIOT.

He Sent His Savings, Twenty-four Two Cent Stamps, to Help Build a Warship.

In Secretary Long's mail the other day was an envelope containing 24 2 cent postage stamps and this letter from Dan Wallingford, 7 years old, of 442 North Penn street, Indianapolis:

"I have been wanting to do something for my country. I think now is the time, so I send you all the pennies I have to help build a new ship."

There was another note in the envelope from Dan's mother. She said the boy was a great reader of American history and patriotic literature and had written the letter and sent the stamps entirely without suggestion from any other person. The stamps were purchased with money from his savings bank and represented all it contained. An appropriate letter of thanks will be sent to the young patriot. The navy department does not know what to do with the stamps. Officials of Secretary Long's office say that they think the next battleship could appropriately be named the Dan Wallingford, but the law provides that all battleships shall be called after the states of the Union. Perhaps the very smallest torpedo boat which congress will authorize this year may be named in his honor.—New York Sun.

"I have known the captain ever since he was born," said Mr. Sigsbee, "and a more wide awake, energetic man does not exist. From his boyhood up I remember him as a remarkably nifty lad, keen, quick witted and yet quiet and never disposed to blow his own horn. The published accounts of his self possession at the time of the explosion of the Maine did not surprise me in the least. It is what I would have expected of him."

"If he has said he doesn't know anything about what caused the explosion, you can rely upon it that it is true. Whether it was by the treachery of the Spaniards or by some other means, it was something that he was in no wise responsible for, I am sure."—New York World.

To Convert Ingersoll.

William Crowdy, the colored evangelist, who claims to be a John the Baptist and that he precedes Christ only a short time, is working wonders among the people in Emporia, Kan. He has now over 100 followers. Of these he has baptized 28 in the Cottonwood river. The other afternoon five were immersed in the icy water, four of whom were white people. He says he has received a personal message from God to go to Washington and convert Bob Ingersoll.—Chicago Tribune.

What He Thought.

"I know," said the candidate for the small office to the veteran, "that you wouldn't sell your vote." "No, suh, I wouldn't!" "That you can't be bribed?" "Now yo' talkin, suh!" "But suppose I should make you a present of $10?" "What would you think?" The voter looked thoughtful, then said, "Well, Marse Jim, jedgin by yo' pas' record, I'd either think yo'd done los' yo' min', or else yo's in de cove' feitin' business!"—Atlanta Constitution.

HE IS A RAT DRIVER.

LUMINOUS PAINT SUCCEEDS WHERE BELLS, TAR AND TRAPS FAILED.

A Man Who Makes Good Money Clearing Warehouses and Other Concerns Around New York of Troublesome Rodents—Began the Business in Stockholm.

Haibtnes of Riverside drive, between Seventy-fifth and Eightieth streets, on very sunny days have noticed a middle aged man carrying a case, which appears to be about three feet long by one foot deep and two feet wide. It is apparently a black leather case with an ordinary grip handle to the upper part, and the man, seeking some unfrequented piece of wall, generally one of the embrasures, places his case on the wall, smokes his pipe and loiters around, looking at the ever changing river and its traffic. If others come around, he moves on, but if not he may stay there from two to three hours in the full sun. He is a rat catcher, or rather a rat driver. He works only in large warehouses and does not touch the smaller dwelling houses or flats except in rare cases.

He is a Scandinavian whom nothing will warm to conversation but his native tongue. His case is wood on the back, ends and bottom and wire on the front and top. There are neat spring shades which roll down over front and top. In this cage are eight or ten large rats. If any one comes near, down go the shades, but as long as the coast is clear the shades are up and the rats are running around basking in the sunlight. If he takes you into his confidence, he will tell you that it is with these rats he clears buildings. The other day he said:

"When I was living in Stockholm, the large granaries were full of rats, and a reward was offered to clear them. Many tried. Traps were set by the hundred.

"One man built a room as large as an ordinary parlor, cased it with tin and fed the rats with oatmeal scented with oil of aniseed, gradually laying trains of this feed to the room until he had all the rats on a string. Then he fitted an automatic drop to the entrance, and when his rats were feeding he caged them all, several hundred. The first man who did this went into the room with dogs to kill them and was nearly eaten himself, like that farmer out west a few weeks ago. The second man starved and then poisoned his, but in a week there were just as many rats as ever. The supply was inexhaustible from the rivers and quays. Poisoning was no good because of the terrific smell, and so I took the matter in hand.

"I thought it over and finally set a trap and caught some rats. Then I tied a piece of wire round their necks, to which I slung a little tinkling brass bell, and then I let the bell ringers loose in the building they had been caught in. They knew the runs and went to join their friends and relatives, who of course ran from the bells. The more they ran the more ran the bell carriers, until the building was 'hoo-doo' in rat language and not a rat would enter.

"If I could have lured back my bell carriers, all would have been well; but, familiarity breeding contempt, the rats grew accustomed to them and in a few months were back again, and as building after building had been cleared by this trick there was not a rat in the city who did not know of the bells. Then I tried tarring some rats with strong smelling coal tar, which rats cannot bear and will avoid if possible, and this answered for awhile, but a fire occurred, and a rat, tar coated, ran out of the blazing building with his fur ablaze and, going into another building not in danger, set it on fire—wood gets very dry in those old buildings over there—and so an ordinance was passed prohibiting the use of tar.

"I had made money, and I came to this country. I did well for some years, but in the depression my capital ran short and I failed; so then I took to clearing business places of rats again and am doing quite well. The first thing is to learn the lay of the building where the rats come from. If a grain elevator is near, clear the elevator and trap those in the other places. Rats very seldom run around more than one building, except as an overflow. Then, having determined that point, try the tar, then the bell, and after that these fellows in the cage. They are coated with luminous paint, and being exposed to the sunlight here can be taken to a building tonight, loosed and will fly through the runs, spreading fear wherever they go and creating a stampede. If you have ever seen luminous paint effects, you can readily understand it. The great beauty of this plan is that the rats do not live more than 24 to 48 hours after a coating with this paint, so the novelty never wears off. It is a preparation of lime, which I discovered for myself, and has to be newly made and mixed like a varnish. This closes the pores of the skin, and after chasing around to catch up with the flying relatives the rat is in a sweat, and that finishes him, and they never get used to it. Will a rat sweat? Well, you cage a rat, and then let a terrier roll the cage around for a few minutes, and you will see a rat as damp as if dipped into a pail of water. I get as high as $20 a month for keeping some places in this city clear of rats and work several

Mr. L. H. CLEMENT:

Having carefully examined the Clifford piano, I am pleased to state that I find the same an excellent instrument. Among its chief points are depth, richness and volume of tone and duration of sound, combined with clearness and perfect evenness throughout the entire scale. Regarding the inner mysteries of piano construction as judged from a practical tuner's standpoint, it is equal in every detail to the best. I consider the Clifford piano entitled to rank among our first-class pianos. Yours truly,

Winter Weary.

Weary o' weather! We're longin' For winds from the valley an' plains Ter rumples the roses o' April, Rimmed with the light an' the rain.

Weary o' blusterin' heavens; Longin' for springtime perfumes, For soft winds ter ripple the rivers An' blow the brown bees ter the blooms!

Weary o' winter an' waitin' For the vines up the trellis ter creep! Somewhere the springtime is smilin' Under a lily, asleep. —F. L. Stanton in Atlanta Constitution.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Additional local on first page.

Postmaster Miskal is ill at his home in Fourth Street.

Miss Murphy and Mrs. Koeber will entertain next Saturday afternoon.

Ticket Agent Adam Hill is suffering from that most exasperating of afflictions, a bealing in his ear.

The special service at St. Stephen's church was well attended last night. Reverend Weary gave an interesting talk.

The stable owned by Christian Metsch in the rear of his mill in Second street was flooded during the night, and considerable feed was lost.

Dawson Huffman, who has been ill at his home in Washington street for some time, suffering with heart trouble, is somewhat improved.

John C. Cain has entered suit in the court of Squire Rose against Mrs. Bridget Kinney for $77.50 claimed due on account. The case will be heard Saturday.

The household effects of Louis Bernmuth, of Toledo, were received at the freight depot this morning. This is the first moving to come to town this week.

A slide from the hill opposite Laughlin's pottery occurred during the night. It caused no damage as the foot of the hill at this point is several feet from the railroad.

The central committee met last evening with D. F. Nellis in the chair. The bills of the campaign were ordered paid. Another meeting will be held next Tuesday evening.

An empty barge came down the river during the night, and struck the Ohio pier of the bridge. It turned around and continued down the stream without doing any damage.

The house occupied by S. J. Martin at the mouth of Chester creek is surrounded by water. Before it commenced to fall this morning water was several feet deep in the house. All the effects were moved yesterday to a place of safety.

It was reported in Wellsville last night that a well known citizen had been drowned, and a NEWS REVIEW reporter set out to obtain the particulars. He soon found the man, but instead of being dead he was drunk.

The high water will delay the running of cars over the new East End extension of the street railroad. The company expected to have cars running by next Saturday, but the way the matter now looks, nothing can be done until next week.

The pony crew was able to get to this place today and do its usual work. The first work done was the placing of empty cars on the sidings at the freight depot. In the afternoon work was done on the Horn switch, much to the delight of the operators.

The construction gang were at work today at the Horn switch junction on the main line, doing what work they could on the new improvements. Passenger trains compelled the crew to stop work several times during the day, and not much headway was made.

Winnie Mercer has been giving the baseball editors something to write about by making the statement that it is a physical impossibility for a pitcher to pitch a raise curve. Winnie said that he may sometimes create the delusion that he makes the sphere go skyward after it has left his hand.

Miss Blanche Bray, of Beaver, is being entertained by Miss Minnie Thompson. Miss Bray came here to sing for the Spinsters and because of the high water cannot return home. Her singing at the entertainment the other evening was highly complimented, and it can truly be said to be among the best ever heard in the city.
